

March 14, 1988

Dear Monsignor:

Please forgive me for being so vague during our meeting in January. As was obvious, the subject matter was and continues to be very difficult for me to discuss.

Enclosed is a copy of a letter which I sent to my uncle, Father James Janssen and a copy of his reply via his attorney.

I have been advised by a psychologist to seek extensive therapy, but I cannot afford it.

I'm hoping that your investigation into this matter will bear pressure on my uncle to accept his responsibility and cover the expenses for my care.

I honestly do not want to litigate this matter, but unless something is done I have no other option.

Sincerely

Jim Wells
